

RAL VOT

Breen

Unknown Gender

Biography

Not all Breen remain part of the Confederacy. Ral Vot is a private weapons specialist operating throughout the Alpha Quadrant, plying their trade to whoever is willing to trade. Vot is private even by Breen standards and not even their gender is known for sure. Not that most people they interact with care: employers are mostly concerned with Vot's results.

Whether by training or natural ability (or both), Ral Vot has a proven record of taking deadly weapons and making them devastating. His disruptor designs, torpedo yield improvements, and radiation emitters can be found in the dark corners of the Alpha Quadrant and in the customized designs of raiders and pilots. Many of his designs are not even illegal since the modifications are so new and unusual that laws lag behind their implementation.

No one is sure why Ral Vot left the Confederacy (including, potentially, Vot themselves) but speculation is rampant. A popular rumor is that they designed a weapon which a powerful Breen leader used to kill a rival, and the political backlash sent Vot into hiding. Another rumor says that Vot has a particular hatred for Klingons (or Romulans or Ferengi...) and that they operate throughout the Quadrant to perfect designs for use against that species. Perhaps the most popular rumor, however, is that Vot is secretly not a Breen at all but a fugitive who killed a Breen officer, stole their uniform, and has been hiding in plain sight while designing weapons of mass destruction.

There's no evidence for any of this, of course, but people want a story. At the end of the day it's entirely possible that Ral Vot is simply a private Breen who likes to travel and gains satisfaction from designing weapons.

Ral Vot Working For the Dominion

Once the Breen join the Dominion, there's a new and interesting angle to take with Ral Vot. Rather than working as an independent contractor, Vot could be a specialist working with the Dominion to improve their armaments. This might be a complete change from the character (Ral Vot as a loyal agent of the Breen Confederacy) but this might also be the opportunity for Ral Vot to return from whatever exile they are suffering under. Either way, this is a bad situation for the Federation who might find Cardassian and Breen ships rapidly retrofitted with Dominion weapon systems and even new weapons specifically targeting Federation technology.
